

Jørgen Leth
by T. Thorhauge
676-009

2        Sometimes you try to justify your actions
3        But only life itself can do that 4        Suddenly play turns serious
5        These things happen
6        It is a vitality
7        Inevitable things happen
8        You cannot turn back time and do over 9        Life is good enough as it is 10       New things happen –
11       – New painful things must be digested
14       There is absolutely nothing wise in noting that 15       That is how it is 16       Can you live with your own memory –
18       – of all the things that hurt –
20       – and all those that created moments of dizzying happiness?
21       That I guess is the task
22       And now I will go downstairs to eat my mango and my omelette

Text from Det uperfekte menneske by Jørgen Leth, reproduced with permission.

Bio: T. Thorhauge (1973, fan of Jørgen Leth since 1984), no-nonsense comics activist. Soon dropping 'Kom Hjem' (April 2009) about single mums and revolutionary romanticism.

Translation: Steffen Rayburn-Maarup